Massachusetts Maritime Academy, set sail last week on a 10-week training cruise to the Caribbean and to South America.

About 500 relatives and friends gathered at the dock to wish the crew well and watch them embark. The entire enrollment of the Academy, 265 men, man the ship. Among them are Greenwood Hartley, III, of Rochester, and James Archer of Marion. The cruise is part of the curriculum, and the cadets will be graded on their sea duty. The "Bay State" is a World War II attack transport and she is commanded by Captain J. J. Keim, chairman of the academy's nautical science department. Commander F. G. Wright is chief engineer.

First stop for the ship will be the Daytens Shipyard in Mount Pleasant, South Carolina. She will then sail to Bermuda and tour the Caribbean and South America. She will return to her berth on the Cape Cod Canal on March 18th. Until then, the Regulations to be Enforced

KEEP OFF HERRING RIVER

The Mattapoisett Selectmen would appreciate the residents of Mattapoisett to caution their children to KEEP OFF THE HERRING RIVER when it is frozen. This is no place to skate as it is not safe.

The residents of Mattapoisett are also cautioned not to pump water from their property onto any of the town streets and highways.

Also, residents are cautioned, when parking their cars on the street, to leave a space on the sidewalk so that the sidewalk plow can go through.

The Police Department has been informed

TOWN REPORT TO SELECTMEN

All Town Departments or Committees should have their 1969 reports in to the Mattapoisett Selectmen's office by the end of this week.

Republicans Meet

The Mattapoissett Republican Town Committee met at the Town Hall on Monday, January 5th, to consider methods of modernizing committee procedures. Mr. Thomas M. Renahan, Jr., chairman, presented a series of revisions to the by-laws that would authorize the executive committee to conduct ordinary business so that full committee meetings can be devoted to a series of political awareness programs.

Continuing Party programs will be promoted through a series of subcommittees; campaign, finance, programs, registration and membership, and community and public relations. Chairman of these committees will be announced shortly.

The Town Committee voted two new officers: Clifford D. Tripp, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Charles B. Dunn, recording secretary.

The new rules were strongly supported as a progressive effort to promote good government through participation, make better use of members' time, and provide a base for the support of candidates for public office.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY

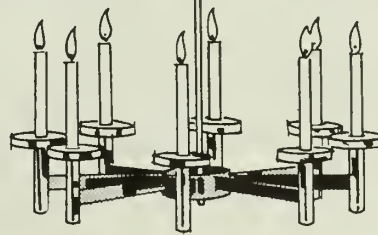

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Hardy, Sr. of Fairhaven Road, Mattapoissett celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary on January 12th.

JANUARY FORAM MEETING

This Thursday evening, January 15th, Friends of Old Rochester Arts and Music will meet at 8:00 P.M. in the Music Room at the High School.

Among the major topics of discussion will be "The First Annual FORAM Awards Banquet", which will honor all O.R.R. music, drama and art students, and is scheduled to take place in the school cafeteria on May 14th.

Of first importance on the meeting agenda is FORAM'S assigned involvement in this year's annual O.R.R. Music-Drama Department's Musical Production. The show selected for this year's presentation is the Broadway smash hit, "George M" -- which is a delightful, charming, musical biography of George M. Cohan.

Bandstand Requirements

BAND COMMITTEE HEARS JOHN PANDOLFI

At a recent meeting of the Mattapoisett Band Committee, much of the business concerned the planning of a new bandstand to be erected in the near future at Shipyard Park. Mr. John Pandolfi presented his views, necessary requirements such as proper acoustics and floor space for some 50 players. Under the direction of Mr. Pandolfi, the townspeople have enjoyed the concerts for a number of summer evenings.

Along with committee members participating in this discussion were Mr. Winfield Jenney, president of the Square Dance

ART CENTER CLASSES

The Marion Art Center announces winter term art classes. These studio classes in painting and drawing will begin the last week of January and will last for six weeks. (No classes during week of February 16th due to vacation.) Sarah Brown, well-known artist from Mattapoisett, will instruct the Tuesday morning class which meets from 9:30 till 12:00. Beginners as well as more advanced students are welcome to participate.

On Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 10:00 the Art Center is pleased to have a new teacher, Mr. Salvatore Frallicciardi, to

His work has been exhibited in France, Germany and Italy. In a show at the Italian consulate in Cologne, one of Salvatore's paintings won first prize. He studied at the Instituto d'Arte di Napoli and has taught painting and the History of Art for two years in Italy. A very personable young man, Salvatore is looking forward to his first teaching experience in America, and the Marion Art Center is pleased to have him brighten up the studio during the winter months.

Registration for classes may be done by calling the Center on Thursday afternoons from 1:00 to 4:00 or at the first class. First class is January 27th and January 29th.

John E. Atkinson

January 10, 1970

Letter to The Editor

In reference to D.C.J.'s (editorial) of January 7th, I must agree that profane language is not accepted in a civilized society. Are we living in a civilized society? No, when people are living in shacks and starving to death. No, when Americans are killing citizens of another country. No, when bets are placed on how many people will die on the Nation's highways. No, when Americans spend more money on killing people than feeding them. No, when Americans continue to litter, and pump more pollution into the air and water. I would suggest that D.C.J. is uncivilized by calling his fellow Americans, "uncouth". Go out into the streets leaving behind your ivory tower and rose tinted glasses. Go out into the streets and help your brother to improve himself.

Being an elected member, to represent History Majors of SMU, of the Committee under Article A Section 1a of the Articles of Interdependence; I can say there is no anarchy. I wasn't shocked by the nasty four-letter words. I have lived in a normal household, worked with immigrant farm help and high school drop-outs, and I have heard many four-letter words. I feel that reading a four-letter word in the Torch has not destroyed my life.

TRYOUTS AT MARION ART CENTER

Tryouts will be held at the Marion Art Center Thursday night, January 15th, at 8 o'clock for the following three productions: "Stop the World - I Want To Get Off", musical scheduled for the middle of March; a program of two one-act plays to be produced in April; and "The Knack", a comedy, to be presented sometime in May.

Many parts are available for men, women and young people. Persons interested in production are also urged to come. The Art Center is located at the corner of Main and Pleasant Streets.

For information call Val Campbell at 748-0485.

QUOTAS FOR NAVAL RESERVE

The New Bedford Naval Reserve Training Center announced recently that new quotas

have been received for the popular Naval Reserve two by six program. In the past months, quotas for this program have been very tight and many applicants have been turned away.

The two by six program is designed to recruit age 18 to 21 unmarried men into the local Naval Reserve Military Training Division.

For further information call the Naval Reserve Recruiter at the New Bedford Naval Reserve Training Center, Fort Rodman, telephone, 996-1833 or 996-4123.

BLAZING A TRAIL THROUGH THE ICE

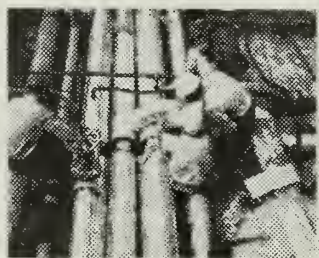

The S.S. Manhattan sails through temperatures of 50 degrees below zero.

In preparing for the recent voyage of the S.S. Manhattan through the "ice-olated" Northwest Passage to the newly-discovered oil field of northern Alaska, Humble Oil, sponsor of this history-making mission faced up to the task of compensating for conditions which included temperatures of 50 degrees below zero for weeks on end.

The vessel, largest United States merchant ship in service, was actually cut apart and put together to form an oil-tanker-icebreaker capable of carrying 38 million gallons of oil on the unprecedented 4,500-mile voyage. Half of this distance was over Arctic ice that can soar in ridges 25 feet above the water and project 60 feet below.

The most striking modification was the addition of a completely new type of bow, a feat which added 65 feet to the vessel. High-strength propellers and shafts and rudder protection devices were also installed at Sun Shipyards, Chester, Pa.

Because the first exploratory voyage did not entail returning with a cargo of oil, only the essential deck piping was insulated to maintain required services. A factory-assembled system, consisting of external aluminum jacketing, vapor barrier and Thermobestos insulation was snapped over bare pipe and held in place with straps and stainless steel bands. Called Special insulation is required to protect pipes.

Metal-On®, it was supplied by Johns-Manville and applied by Philadelphia Asbestos Corp. Services protected included fire mains, water supply lines, steam lines to deck winches, heating supply lines to occupied spaces, sanitary lines and compressed air.

Success of this historic effort, one of the most impressive launched by private industry, will have a tremendous effect on the shipbuilding industry, as well as the oil industry. Reports are that an estimated 25 or 30 tankers may eventually be constructed for service in the Northwest Passage trade. One oil company alone has revealed that it will require six-tanker-icebreakers by 1975, each of 250,000 deadweight tons. Obviously, such vessels will be designed and constructed initially to provide the structural and mechanical protection that had to be refitted into the Manhattan.

Students in District Concert

O.R.R. STUDENTS SELECTED TO PARTICIPATE

The prestigious, annual Southeast Massachusetts District Concert will be held in Attleboro this year on Saturday afternoon, January 17th, Old Rochester Regional High School will be represented by three music students.

Keenest competition prevailed during the auditions for this important event. Auditions took place in Fall River in October. Many eager aspirants from all southeast Massachusetts area high schools competed in the special auditions, in all concert categories of District Chorus, District Band and District Orchestra.

Coveted recognition by the panel of critically discerning, distinguished judges, and selection to participate in this most rewarding student program, was achieved by Old Rochester Regional audition candidates.

The honored winners from O.R.R., who will be performing in the 1970 District Concert in Attleboro on January 17th are Christian Saether, who will playing Bassoon with the District Orchestra; Susan Whalen, also with the orchestra, playing cello; and Michael King, who will be the district orchestra's lead percussionist.

workers and personnel directors. Ten lessons with two-hour sessions are planned. Mrs. Jean Bancroft will be instructor. Register now.

Women of all ages, interested in synchronized swimming, may contact Mrs. Beatrice Whalen, director of pool program for full details. Classes will be given in the mornings, beginning this month.

Two changes are planned for the yoga program. Mrs. Martha Berg announces that a new Thursday evening yoga class for men and women is being taught by Alden Blake. Optional following the classes is the use of the sauna and/or the pool.

Classes are now continuous for those who like the benefits of regular exercise. Sign up for six week periods at a time.

Men and women of all ages will find these classes open to them. The stretching and holding of yoga postures along with proper breathing technique encourages good muscle and skin tone, firming loose understimulated external areas while flexing and re-viving tightened, internal muscles.

Mrs. Jaynt Rana, from India, will be hostess for the Exotic Foods Club on Wednesday, January 21st. Mrs. Rana, fascinating speaker, will tell about life in her native land, besides preparing a native meal.

"THE NEW ART OF GOING NAKED"

Z

NEW YORK (ED)—Wool . . . a masterful paradox . . . bred by nature, and developed by man, to protect the human form from the elements, today advocates "The New Art of Going Naked."

In a totally contemporary approach to fashion as a living art form, The Wool Bureau, Inc., United States branch of the International Wool Secretariat, invited three creative elements—a distinguished artist, one of America's foremost mills, and three internationally-acclaimed American fashion designers—to set their distinct and diversified talents to work within an advanced new medium . . . a natural fabric, rendered in sheer-spun transeasonal weights and translucent weaves . . . "Naked Wool."

Inspired by the fabrics inherently soft hand, suppleness and ability to hold a sleek, sinuous line, the artist—Gerald Laing—a young, contemporary master whose sculpture and graphics are exhibited in museums all over the world, created a gallery of dynamic, highly original prints . . . each a bold, unconstricted, smoothly synchronized reflection of today's fluid, free-flowing fashion spirit.

SMALLER TELEPHONE RECEIVER

The Bell System expects to save more than two hundred tons of strategic raw materials per year by trimming a mere ounce and a half from its standard telephone receiver.

Smaller and lighter than the current standard unit, the "LB Receiver" will be introduced in limited quantities next year and will eventually become the standard for signature genius to the masterful shaping and detailing of each costume in the group designed to herald "The New Art of Going Naked."

The entire "Naked Wool" collection bears the sewn-in Woolmark label, an internationally recognized quality-control symbol signifying that fashions have been tested and approved by the Wool Bureau as "the world's best . . . pure wool".

sive use of those designers participating in the event.

Inspired by the fine quality and exhilarating mood of the printed wool fabrics . . . with their delicate weightlessness, infinite drapability, definitive sense of airborne nudity, and innate versatility in adapting to the sudden temperature changes so inevitably a part of Space-Age travels . . . each of the three designers—Geoffrey Beene, Bill Blass and Chester Weinberg—applied his nearly all Bell System telephone sets.

Local telephone manager, T. C. McGarry says the new receiver was developed jointly by engineers from Bell Telephone Laboratories, research and development unit of the Bell System, and from Western Electric Company, manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System. It is a thinner, improved version of an earlier receiver unit which was designed for exclusive use in the TRIM-LINE telephone.

The smaller new unit was achieved by re-designing the magnet and most of the structural parts of the present receiver unit used in the TRIMLINE. When Western Electric's anticipated 10 million unit per year production rate is reached, the new design will result in an annual savings of some 85 tons of molybdenum, 49 tons of cobalt, 43 tons of nickel and 30 tons of copper.

An assembly method devised especially for the new receiver will allow acoustical output to be measured via computer during adjustment of the unit, thereby assuring both a precise product and few rejections.

The new receiver will be used in the electronic phone of the future, which requires a smaller and lighter unit than is currently available.
